ENGIE and SONATRACH expand their trade relationships

ENGIE Group and the Algerian National Hydrocarbon Company SONATRACH signed today a series of agreements on the supply of natural gas, in the presence of Mr Kamel-Eddine Chikhi, Chairman and CEO of SONATRACH and Mr Pierre Chareyre, Deputy CEO of ENGIE.

Under these agreements, SONATRACH will deliver new volumes of natural gas to ENGIE with a total volume of almost 10 bcm over several years.

The first shipments will be dispatched as gaseous gas into the Trans-Mediterranean pipeline. Then, shipments of liquid natural gas (LNG) will be carried out in particular at the Fos Tonkin LNG terminal in France.

These new contracts expand the long-standing relationship between the two groups and reinforce the role of gas as an essential component of the energy transition.
